evasys

evasys.
The professional software for evaluation projects of any kind.

Efficiently realize professional surveys

Evasys is the established software solution for the automated and professional realization of surveys. The evaluation software enables a quick and efficient course of the entire survey process and is the ideal solution for any area of application.

Whether the feedback of learners, teachers, seminar participants, employees, patients or customers should be systematically recorded – you can realize every evaluation project efficiently and professionally with evasys.

As web-based software, evasys is immediately available organization-wide and as such enables a quick and flexible start of your project, regardless of whether you want to host the system internally or externally. You can design individual questionnaires in a few steps with our questionnaire editor. The survey itself can be conducted as a classic paper-based survey, online survey or combined as a hybrid survey. With just a few clicks you can decide on the right survey medium.

Due to the different participation possibilities the acceptance from your survey participants increases considerably. Immediately after capturing you receive a detailed PDF-report of your results and can carry out further analyses with the raw data as a basis.

Worldwide over 1.500 organizations with thousands of users already use evasys for their individual evaluation projects. As the market leader for the cross-media realization of automated surveys we stand by your side with over 25 years of experience.

>> Since its installation, evasys runs stably and almost without technical supervision. Updates have so far been installed within a short time and the support team reacts quickly, friendly and competently to technical questions. <<

Automation
Complex projects in no time at all

Evasys offers diverse possibilities for the maximum automation of the survey process. Already when mapping the internal structure, existing data can be imported and transferred automatically into evasys. The imported data is automatically integrated into the created questionnaire when generating surveys. With just a few clicks you can thus receive any desired number of individually adapted questionnaires. Before distributing a survey you can choose to upload participant data, which is then saved in evasys. The paper questionnaires are captured via a scanner and evaluated automatically. You receive a comprehensive PDF-report of the results which you can edit individually mere seconds after scanning.

Time-saving
Accelerate processes, preserve human resources

You can save valuable time and human resources and simultaneously reduce error rates with evasys for both singular as well as regular or recurring evaluation projects. With only one click you can generate hundreds of surveys. The automation of the evaluation project increases the value of data due to low error and high response rates and offers the perfect basis for the subsequent qualitative processing of collected data. The laborious retyping of results becomes obsolete. This way you can concentrate on the findings of the results and optimize processes.

Web application
Work anywhere and at anytime, without additional software

Evasys is a web-based software tool that is installed centrally and is immediately available organization-wide, regardless of whether the system is hosted internally or externally. Merely a web browser is required for use, which is already pre-installed on most systems. An additional installation is not necessary. The scalable and modern software architecture supports you with the problem-free integration into your IT environment. A quick and smooth start of your evaluation project is thus guaranteed.

Various media
Paper-based, online and hybrid surveys

Different survey target groups require different media to reach them efficiently. With evasys you have the choice between three survey mediums: paper-based, online or hybrid. A survey with a paper questionnaire is the classic solution to receive direct feedback. Online surveys are especially useful for internet-oriented target groups. Should you be unsure which of the two alternatives is preferable, you can combine them in a hybrid survey. A URL as well as a QR-code, which forward the respondent to the online version of the survey, are then printed on a paper questionnaire. The respondent can decide freely which medium he or she wants to use. For the participation in an online survey with mobile devices, for example smart phones or tablets, the layout is automatically adapted. Thus it is possible to participate in an online survey anywhere and at any time. By the way: you can work with evasys on the go as well. The web-based technology as well as the support of mobile devices enable work independent of your work station - even on the road.
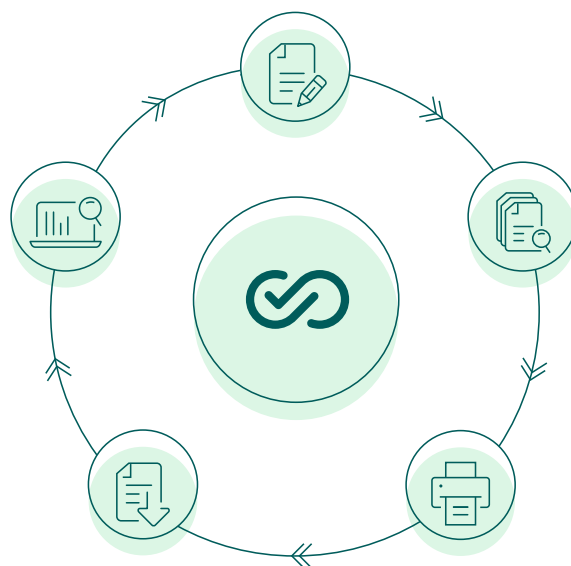

Individuality
Personal designs and flexible questionnaires

Companies and organizations often highly value a consistent outward presentation. The corporate design is an important element of communication. Evasys supports you with the adherence to your corporate design in various ways. You can not only create the content of your questionnaires completely freely but also have diverse possibilities for the graphic layout. Use your own company colors or logos to individually adapt paper-based or online surveys and thus reach a higher acceptance from survey participants.

Survey process
Evasys survey process in three steps

The entire survey process can be illustrated in three steps with evasys. In the first phase the distinct organizational structure is mapped and user roles are determined. Individual questionnaires can be designed with the questionnaire editor. A generically designed questionnaire can be automatically populated with structural data present in the system and individually adapted with miscellaneous data for any number of surveys. In the second phase you distribute the survey to your target group. Paper questionnaires are printed and distributed, online surveys are sent. For online surveys EvaSys offers an effective invitation function. The sending of PSWDs to survey participants enables representative survey results, as the re-accessing of the online survey is prevented. In the final phase captured data is evaluated and analyzed. Immediately after capturing, a comprehensive PDF-report or the raw data for further analyses is available.

Support
First-class support

We support you after your purchase, so that your evaluation project becomes a success. We offer various trainings or coachings for an optimal introduction to the software. Our competent team of experts will help you if any questions arise. Whether via telephone or e-mail - the support team assists you at any time with any query.

Innovation
Established software solutions and technical progress

The satisfaction of our customers is our priority. Therefore we continuously work on the further development of our software products. We regularly provide our users with new versions and plug-ins that simplify the work with evasys. The selection of new functions is constantly inspired by the needs of our customers and the demands of the market. With our innovative software we will also support you with future projects to the best of our ability. An example is the possibility to integrate evasys via the web service interface into the present IT environment in order to further optimize or automate internal processes. Thereby evasys becomes an incorporated part of your work flow.

Security
Your data is in safe hands with us

We place utmost importance on data security. Your person-centered data is always saved centrally at the internal IT department. In evasys you can create different user types (administrator, sub-administrator, active account, report creator, data entry assistant etc.) in order to restrict the rights of certain users. This and many other functions in evasys support you in protecting your data and managing it securely.
